

The Blagonwight Twins Visit Korea

Mia Thompson
Jisoo Kim

Bimo and Bindi Blagonwight went on an overseas trip to Korea. They flew into an apartment and had a look around.

Inside the apartment they found some scary things they had never seen before.

They saw some little swords on a kitchen table and were afraid they would be attacked.

They saw a children's refrigerator.
When they opened it and strong smell filled the room

They heard a hissing noise and turned to see a smoke-breathing monster.

The twins landed on the floor and could feel that it was warm. They thought the building was on fire and left quickly.

When the twins returned home, they told their teacher about all the strange things they saw.

The teacher taught them how to eat with chopsticks. She said that Korea is the only country that uses metal chopsticks.

She explained about rice cookers.
They always cook the rice perfectly by controlling the temperature while it is boiling.

She taught them how to make kimchi and store it in special kimchi refrigerators to keep it fresh.

She described underfloor heating .
Hot water is run through pipes under the floor to heat the room.
It's called ondol.

The twins decided that different things aren't so scary after you learn about them. What new and exciting place should they visit next?
